Many organizations will at some point experience a business disruption. The cause and nature of disruptive events is ever-changing.

It has been demonstrated in recent times that an organization's ability to manage disruptive events is becoming central to its survival. The variety of threats that can cause business disruption is ever-increasing. From cyber-attacks and global pandemics to natural disasters, an organization needs a toolset to manage itself through uncertain times.

Through HRDC-claimable programs, PNMS provides direct coaching and consulting to clients in implementing and sustaining risk management processes for business resilience objectives. Our consultants were corporate practitioners who understand the nuances and challenges in implementing ISO management programs in various organizations and industries.
